

Would you let your brother-in-law manage your life savings?

Your personal finances, insurance needs and investments are important – and complex. A personal financial advisor who is a member professional of the Chambre de la sécurité financière will analyze your financial needs and profile and recommend solutions tailored to your particular situation and goals. Personal financial advisors are not self-taught: they must follow and successfully complete a prescribed course of study and be certified in order to practice. It's the law.

Chambre de la sécurité financière professionals have the expertise to secure and grow your money.

At the Chambre de la sécurité financière, we oversee the competence of your advisors, because their competence is your best protection.
